Boolean Operators are used to connect and define the relationship between your search terms. You can use Boolean Operators to either narrow or broaden your search results.

Use AND in a search to:

- Narrow your results
- Instruct the database that all search terms must be present in the resulting records
- Example: cloning AND humans AND ethics (CEH).

Use OR in a search to:

- Combine two or more similar concepts or synonyms
- Broaden your results, instructing the database that any of your search terms may be present in the resulting records
- Example: cloning OR ethics OR human.

See MIT Libraries' "Database Search Tips: Boolean Operators"

6 Library eResources

Use Library eResources to locate specific journals or books.

Journals
Click on the Journals tab. Enter the name of your journal — eg Lancet — in the search box and click Search.

TOC Alerts
You can also set up table-of-contents (TOC) alerts for any journal you're interested in.

Journals
Select your journal from the list of search results. Click on the link(s) to access holdings for the years specified.
